Part I: INTRODUCTION. THE GUARANTEE SYSTEM
The starting problem: the difficulty of access to SMEs finance

In many cases, both SMEs and the self-employed have difficulties accessing to finance, despite having solid and viable projects, due to the requirement for financial institutions to provide guarantees.

It is within this framework that the Guarantee System emerges, which began to be regulated in Spain in the late 1970s.

What does the Guarantee System offer?

In essence, supporting SMEs lends itself so that its financial position is supported against credit institutions, suppliers, customers and even the government. In this way, the credit risk of the SME is assumed by those entities known as Mutual Guarantee Societies or SGR for their acronyms in Spanish.

The System offers a double benefit:

✓ For the SME, which, when guaranteed, can access to the credit.
✓ For the credit institution, which lends without risk because, in case the financial transaction is finally failed, it’s the SGR who responds as guarantor.

The contribution of the SGR is not only limited to the granting of guarantees, but also provides information services, advice, financial training and business promotion. The added value provided by the SGR in carrying out a study and subsequent monitoring of the viability of the operation proposed by the SME provides additional security to the credit institution granting the financing.

As a direct consequence of the intervention of the SGR, banks, savings banks or credit unions are more likely to provide financing at low and long-term rates, by means of agreements or credit lines, by minimizing the risk assumed with the intervention of their guarantee. Specifically targeted at SMEs and previously negotiated with SGRs.
What does the SME Guarantee System require?

Mutual Guarantee Companies can only guarantee operations to their partners, so that in order to grant the guarantee to an SME, it must necessarily acquire the status of partner.

In the SGR there are two types of partners:

- Participant partners
- Protection partners

An SME that wants to be endorsed by an SGR must become a partner. To do this, it must acquire one or more social quotas from the SGR, thus increasing its own resources and, in short, its capacity to undertake new collateral operations. Said amount, if desired, will be fully refunded upon cancellation of the credit obtained. Otherwise, the SME will remain a partner, and will have access to other services and services of the SGR.

For an SME to be a partner, it must belong to the sector or sectors of economic activity mentioned in the statutes of the SGR, and its establishment must be located within the geographical scope defined in the aforementioned statutes.

The protection partners do not have the right to request SGR guarantees, but form a support system for SGRs, which may be in the form of a contribution to their capital or to their so-called Technical Provisions Fund. Among the main protection partners, we find:

- Autonomous Communities
- Chambers of Commerce
- Provincial Councils
- Associations of entrepreneurs
- Banks
- Savings Banks
- Private companies
Other players in the Guarantee System

In the Guarantee System, besides the SGR, there are other important figures such as:

- CESGAR, which is a non-profit association formed in 1980 with the corporate purpose of assuming the functions of coordination, cooperation, defense and representation of the interests of the Reciprocal Guarantee Societies existing in Spain.

  CESGAR is a member of the board of directors of CEOE and CEPYME, with which it carries out joint actions in favor of the small and medium-sized company. Likewise, CESGAR is a founding member, and currently holds the Vice-Presidency, of the European Association of Surety Mutual, AECM, which has the role of representing the common interests of its members, at European level, and, above all, of consolidating and to develop the role of SGRs as an essential tool for boosting SMEs across Europe.

  It promotes all kinds of agreements with public or private institutions, national or foreign that benefit the associates. It develops advisory and technical assistance work, carries out studies and statistics, and develops training plans. Likewise, CESGAR plays a particularly important role in relation to the specific legal regulation of the sector.

- CERSA, Spanish Reinsurance Company, which acts as an instrument of public support, materializing the State's commitment through the partial coverage of the risks assumed by the SGR with the companies. CERSA acts as a financial endorsement for a portion of the operations of financial guarantee, mainly of the SGR, assuming, on average, more than 50% of the payments for failed operations and reducing the requirements of own resources to meet the solvency criteria.

  Both the SGR and CERSA are financial entities subject to the control of the Bank of Spain.
SAECA, Sociedad Anónima Estatal de Caución Agraria (SAECA). Es una empresa pública española cuyos accionistas son la Sociedad Estatal de Participaciones Industriales (SEPI), con el 80% del capital y el Fondo Español de Garantía Agraria FEGA con el 20% del capital restante. La actividad de SAECA es la prestación de avales y fianzas para facilitar el acceso a la financiación al conjunto del sector primario. State Corporation of Agricultural Bond (SAECA). It is a Spanish public company whose shareholders are the Industrial State Holding Company (SEPI), with 80% of the capital and the Spanish Agricultural Guarantee Fund FEGA with 20% of the remaining capital. SAECA activity is the provision of guarantees and bonds to facilitate access to finance to set the primary sector.

More information about CESGAR, more information about CERSA and more information about SAECA.

The role of Reciprocal Guarantee Societies

Mutual Guarantee Companies are financial non-profit entities, whose objective is to facilitate access to credit for SMEs (and self-employed), who become part of it as a partner, as already indicated.

Its regulation as financial institutions means that:

✓ They are subject to a specific corporate purpose: the provision of guarantees to companies.
✓ They are defined in a regulatory framework similar to that of credit institutions (solvency, provisions, information, control and inspection of the Bank of Spain, etc.)
✓ They are integrated into the Spanish financial system and are considered as financial compensation.

The guarantees offered by the SGRs are in the form of direct guarantees for viable business projects that, due to their size or characteristics, face difficulties in accessing financing. These guarantees are not limited exclusively to those of an economic nature, but may also be of a technical nature:

Guarantees of an economic nature: These are divided in commercial guarantees (referring to commercial operations that correspond to the payment deferred in the sale of any kind of property, payment installments, sums delivered in advance, etc.), and financial guarantees (these are loans or credits obtained by the company guaranteed from any financial institution to which the guarantor is directly obligated to reimburse).

Guarantees of a technical nature: They do not represent a direct obligation of payment for the guarantor, but they respond to the breach of the commitments that the guarantor has generally contracted to a Public Organization. They are granted to SMEs before the different public administrations and private entities in order to guarantee the award of the procurement files, whose direct object is the execution of works, management of services and provision of supplies.

Within these types of guarantee, we identify two types: Final Bonds (when the contract is awarded) and Provisional Bonds (To tender, they are delivered with all requested documents and expire in the award of the contest.).

The SGR additionally assume another series of functions within the System:

- Ensure with bank guarantees not only bank financing, but also from other sources.
- Provide information, advisory, financial training and business promotion services to its members.
- Carry out activities to negotiate financing lines for SMEs and the self-employed.
- Canalize and process public subsidies.
- Improve the solvency conditions in which credit institutions provide financing to SMEs.
- Provide access to a broad customer base, performing a great deal of business work between companies.

How the Reciprocal Guarantee Societies are structured

In total, there are 19 Mutual Guarantee Companies in the Spanish territory, apart from SAECAB, whose role in the System is equivalent. The Guarantee Societies have a limited scope of action, which can be:

- Scope (multi-sectorial): 18 SGR, associated to Autonomous Communities.
- Sectorial Scope (multiregional): 2, which are CREA- SGR and SAECAB.

The sectors that have a specific Guarantee Society are:

- Primary sector: Through SAECAB. For more information, see here.
- Cultural Industries Sector: Through CREA-SGR. For more information, see here.
- Social Economy Sector: Through ELKARGI-SGR. For more information, see here.

Directory of Mutual Guarantee Companies

This section includes the list of SGRs and their available venues. Section IV includes individual records of each of the SGRs mentioned below, which detail the most relevant information about them.

Conclusions: the advantages provided by the Guarantee System

Advantages can be summarized for:

To SME’s:

- Access to financing for companies and self-employed people with insufficient guarantees but with viable projects.
- Improved term and interest rate conditions.
- Flexibility: adapted to all types of SMEs and need for financing (current, investment, technical guarantees, etc.).
- Reduced requirement of guarantees to be provided by the company.
- Inform and advise partners financially.

To Credit Institutions:

- Less exposure to client risk and improvement of credit quality.
- Qualification of the guarantee by the Bank of Spain.
- Quality and liquidity of the guarantee: total delinquency coverage and failures, no provisioning, recovery management.
- Return on capital of the guaranteed operations.
- Monitoring of delinquencies and recoveries by guarantee companies.

To Administration:

- Efficient channeling of public resources to the SME: multiplier effect.
- Leverage in the resources, experience and capillary network of the SGR.
- Contrasted macro / microeconomic effect on the beneficiary companies.
- An effective tool for business promotion, with special attention to SMEs and entrepreneurs from all sectors.
- Promotion of public-private collaboration.
Part II: PROCESS FOR OBTAINING GUARANTEES
Step 1: The first contact and presentation of the Project

Companies and the self-employed, who need financing for a viable business project, can obtain benefit from the advantages of an SGR endorsement. There are generally two cases:

- Companies or self-employed people who do not have sufficient guarantees to obtain a credit from financial institutions.
- Companies or self-employed people who, having sufficient guarantees to be taken care of by the lenders, know that with an endorsement from the SGR, they will obtain a loan with better repayment terms and interest rates.

Normally clients turn to SGRs in response to the bank's refusal to grant the loan initially. Firstly, the entrepreneur must submit the transaction for which the guarantee is requested, along with all the necessary documentation for the risk analysis. Unlike credit institutions, the SGR will focus its analysis mainly on the viability of the project.

There are the following options to obtain the guarantees offered by the SGR:

- Address through credit institutions with signed agreements.
- Address directly to the Reciprocal Guarantee Societies themselves.
- Address to the State Corporation of Agricultural Security (SAECA), in case the operation falls within its scope of action.

If you do not go through a financial institution, the SME should go to the SGR that operates in the Autonomous Community where it develops its corporate purpose, except in the case that there are some companies with a national scope and sectorial nature.

Step 2: Being a Partner in the SGR

Companies that wish to carry out an operation with an SGR must subscribe a reimbursable social participation to become partners. The value of the participation is fixed between 1-4% of the amount of the guarantee. Such participation is recovered at the end of the term of the operation, when there is no live risk.
Step 3: Approval of the operation / cost of the guarantee

After the approval of the operation, it is formalized, for which it should be taken into account that it will involve costs for the partner:

- A study commission.
- An annual guarantee fee, % of the amount pending repayment.
Part III: PRACTICAL CASES
Financial guarantee of an SGR

"A SME in the IT sector brings to the market an innovative product. During the first six months, the product exceeds the expectations of the initial market study of the SME itself. They are determined to expand their manufacturing plant to respond more adequately to current demand. They estimate a total investment in the project of about 250,000 euros, and will need at least a 70% financing. They went to their usual financial institution and this financing was denied them for not presenting enough guarantees.

They come to the SGR of their Autonomous Community, presenting a project feasibility study, with the objective of obtaining the necessary endorsement to present it to their financial institution, in the constitution of a loan of 175,000 euros to 5 years.

In this case, it is necessary for the company to become a partner in the SGR and to pay the social contribution during the duration of the guarantee, in addition to incurring fees for collateral, study expenses and brokerage, when a trading broker.

Once obtained the endorsement of the SGR, it goes to the financial institution and this one grants the loan to him, in addition to providing him with better conditions than those offered by the market today."

Technical guarantee of an SGR

"A company in the food sector wants to participate in a tender for the provision of dining services of a public hospital. To participate in this contest, the company must submit a technical bank guarantee. To do this, it goes to the SGR of its autonomous community, with the proposal that will be the object of obtaining the required guarantee. The SGR analyzes the proposal with a feasibility study. The company complies with the requirements demanded by the SGR and is registered as a member of the SGR, subscribing a social participation and disbursing 25% of its nominal value.

The SGR will respond in case of breach of the commitments that the guaranteed endowed by reason of participation in the public tender.

The guaranteed company benefits by not having to pay interest, since there is no transfer of funds. This company pays for commission of opening, commission of study and commission of risk, in addition to brokerage expenses, when intervening a commercial broker. In this case the date of extinction is determined (at the end of the period during which the service is provided).

Thanks to the technical guarantee obtained from the SGR of its autonomous community, it was able to participate in the desired tender. The company is awarded with the tender."
